01 BACKGROUND RESEARCH

INTRODUCTION

- Quảng Trị is one of the provinces most heavily affected by unexploded bombs and landmines after the Vietnam War.
- Many explosive remnants remain buried in farmland, forests, rivers, and residential areas.
- These explosive devices continue to threaten local communities.
- Continuous clearance operations and public safety education are still necessary.

CONTEXT RESEARCH

- Large areas of land are still contaminated with unexploded bombs and landmines.
- Farmers and children are the most vulnerable groups.
- Accidents often result in permanent disabilities, psychological trauma, and financial hardship.
- Explosive remnants also slow economic growth and infrastructure development.

RELEVANCE TO THE STORY

- The story is inspired by the real-life situation in Quảng Trị.
- Gạo lost part of his leg in a landmine accident but never gave up on his dream.
- The story encourages resilience and determination.
- It also raises awareness about the dangers of unexploded bombs and promotes the value of peace.

02 CHARACTER DESIGN

- Profile: An energetic elementary school boy who lost an arm due to a UXO (unexploded ordnance) accident.
- Personality & Motivation: Kind, brave, and determined.
- Symbolism: He represents the resilience, hope, and strength of children overcoming the lasting impacts of war to pursue their dreams.

Gạo

- Profile: A wise, patient, and loving former soldier with a gentle smile and scarred hands.
- Role in Story: He acts as Gao's emotional support by sharing inspiring wartime stories and teaching him many meaningful life lessons.
- Symbolism: He represents the older generation passing down courage, patriotism, and responsibility to the youth.
